What is the growth rate of reefer container volumes in 2023?

Reefer container volumes are forecast to grow from 4 million TEU in 2023 to 7.1 million TEU by 2030 (CAGR 8.8%), driven by pharma, e-commerce, and perishable trade. Q2 marks peak season for South American perishables, including Chilean grapes, blueberries, and citrus from Argentina and Uruguay.

How will summer affect Reefer trade?

Reefer volumes continue to rise, especially on trades from South America to Europe and Asia to the Middle East. The buildup to Northern Hemisphere summer will increase demand for reefer imports (fruits, vegetables, seafood), tightening capacity on certain trade lanes (e.g., South America-Europe, Africa-Europe).

Why are Reefer exporters exploring alternative markets?

Reefer exporters to the U.S. are now exploring alternative markets due to tariff risk. Brazilian poultry exports are growing faster than expected, as global demand rises after Avian Flu outbreaks in other regions.
